To owners of Dodge Ram trucks from 1994 to 2007.5: Do you have play, wandering or a violent shake when hitting a bump (some call it a "death wobble")? Then Luke's Link is your solution. Luke's Link was developed to permanently solve these problems. Track bar and tie rod ends are the number one cause of the wandering or shake. Luke's Link converts the ball stud end of these bars to a fully adjustable end. No need to keep buying expensive bars that don't last when all you need is the ball joint ends.

These kits are fully adjustable, easy to install, and guaranteed for the life of the truck. Luke's Link has been solving steering problems for 28 years.

Luke's Link products work on Dodge tie rod ends and track bars as well as Ford tie rod ends and Jeep track bars.

How To Check If Track Bar Or Tie Rod Ends Are Worn

Convert this, to this:

With truck on ground, wheels straight ahead, unlock steering wheel (do not start engine). Have someone rock steering wheel left and right hard while you look at each end of track bar as well as all 4 tie rod ends for any up and down movement. If there is any, you know this is causing play in the steering.

"Wild Chance Post Anchor" Keeps Fence Posts From Pulling Up Out Of Ravines

Keeping a fence in place at the bottom of a ravine isn't easy, because the upward pressure from the fence on either side of the ravine tends to pull the post up. The "Wild Chance Post Anchor", which attaches to any standard steel post, holds the post down, solving the problem, says inventor Patrick Fordyce of Hilger, Mont.

The anchor is easy to install. After the post is driven into the ground, the natural upward pull of the fence acts to open the anchor under the ground. Instructions on how to attach the anchor are included with each box of anchors.

The Fordyce's say they will have a supply on hand for the spring fencing season if anyone wants to give them a try. They sell for $50 per box of 15 anchors.

Wild Chance Post Anchor attaches to any steel post with a pair of pliers. As post is pulled upward, wings bow out to hold it in place.
