Labor-Saving Machines Built In Farm Shops

Delbert Cate converted a Jeep 4-WD pickup into a "Jeeptor" that's equipped with combine and tractor tires as well as a loader on back. He uses it to move 700 5 by 6-ft. bales a year. Story on page 2.

New-style rock bucket is equipped with a rotating reel that pulls rocks into the back of the bucket while at the same time allowing dirt to drop out through tines. Story on page 2.
