Loader-Mounted ATV Hauler

Alistair Roberts of Wrexham, Wales needed a way to haul his 4-wheeler home from a sheep farm 12 miles away. "He hauls the 4-wheeler on a trailer going out to the farm to round up sheep. But the trailer's full on the way back so he used to have to leave it there and go back later to haul it home," he says.

He solved the problem by building a loader-mounted ATV hauler. "With the loader carrying the 4-wheeler I can return in a single trip."

The hauler consists of a steel frame made from 2-in. box tubing, with wells for the ATV's wheels. The frame slips over 2 of the forks on the loader bucket and is then strapped down for safety.
