

INSTANTLY SEARCHES SALVAGE YARDS THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY

New Service Helps Locate Scarce Parts

Your local salvage yard can now tie into a new nationwide computerized locator service for hard-to-find tractor and combine parts.

The service, called E-NET, lets any yard list needed parts on the network which is scanned daily by 120 salvage yards throughout the U.S. and is still growing.

Joe Goodman Tractor Parts Co., in Lincoln, Neb., was one of the first salvage yards to sign up with E-NET. "It's a tremendous service. We can search the whole country just by making one listing with E-NET. So far, we've been about 80% successful in filling requests for parts we don't have in stock," says Andrew Goodman, president. His company doesn't charge its farmer-customer for the service.

Brian Hirscher, a representative of E-NET, headquartered in Kelseyville, Calif., says the new computerized service for locating hard-to-find used parts has been operating for 8 months. "We list used parts for tractors, combines, skid steer loaders, crawler tractors and other agricultural equipment. The 120 salvage yards subscribing to our service call us when they need a part and we list it. The request goes out the next day to computer terminals that we provide to each salvage yard. Any yard that has the needed part in stock immediately calls the "searching" salvage yard to let them know "we've got it". Hirscher says the company doesn't take listings from individual farmers.

Your nearest used parts salvage yard can contact E-NET for more information. Contact: FARM SHOW Followup, E-NET, 6890 Live Oak Dr., Kelseyville, Calif. 95451 (ph toll-free 800 828-5035; in California, call 800 828-8248).

REGISTERS IN EXACT ACRES

New Acreage Counter Is Simple and Inexpensive

You'll like the price tag on the new "no frills" acreage counter from B & L Mfg., Winnebago, Minn. Priced at only $95, it's a simple, low-cost alternative to fancier electronic counters that give you a number of other read-outs but also cost a lot more.

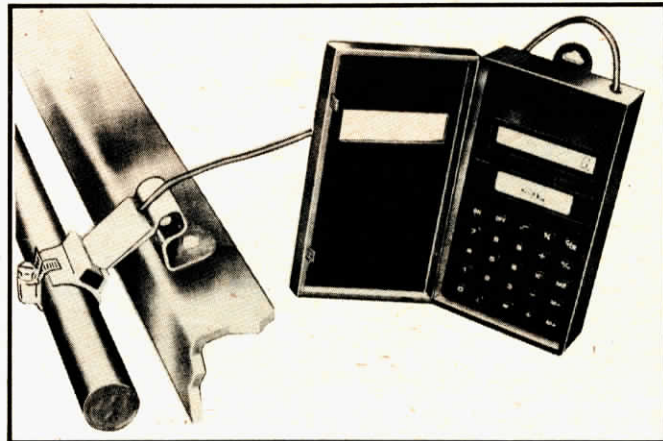

The new EC-200 operates off a ground-driven shaft, translating each revolution into a proportion of an acre and feeding the information into a special calculator. A spokesman says it "works great" on tractors, planters, combines, sprayers and other implements for verifying — in exact acres covered — application rates of herbicides, insecticides, fertilizers, or the exact number of acres covered each round with your planter, combine or other implements.

The counter includes a magnet, to be strapped to a rotating shaft with a hose clamp, and a sensor, also secured to the implement, which records each revolution of the magnet.

The calculator can be left on the implement or connected via a 20 ft. cord to the tractor. If you'd like counters on other implements, you can buy additional sensors but still use the one calculator, punching in the different factor for each implement. Additional sensors and counters, minus the calculator, sell for $55.
